Beginning the Next Chapter
For both professional and personal reasons I have decided to complete my time as chancellor on July 1, 2018. I have greatly appreciated the warm embrace of the campus and community and the many opportunities to advance the mission of IU South Bend. This is a campus that continues to fulfill the promise of Indiana University by graduating students from a broad spectrum of our community, fostering economic development of our region, and promoting deep civic engagement of our students, faculty, staff, and the region we serve. I am humbled by the level of support our very philanthropic region has given to advance IU South Bend’s mission. My current (but flexible) plans are to prepare courses, volunteer for a national not-for-profit, and spend more time with my fiancé in Montreal and my recently widowed mother in Texas. I’m deeply grateful for the opportunity to serve as chancellor and thank you again for your support.

Interim Chancellor
Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Jann Joseph will serve as interim chancellor at IU South Bend beginning July 2. The announcement was made by IU Executive Vice President for University Academic Affairs John Applegate. Dr. Joseph has worked closely with Chancellor Allison since arriving on campus in 2014.

Purchase of Wooden Indian Motel
As part of our continuing effort to create a more welcoming and safe gateway to River Crossing student housing on the south side of campus, Indiana University has purchased the Wooden Indian Motel at 1631 Lincoln Way East. The structures there will be demolished. While there are no immediate plans for the property we are engaging with business and community leaders about possible development of the area which also includes the land we acquired with the purchase of the adjacent Club Landing bar and restaurant. The structures on the Club Landing property were demolished in 2016.

This edition of Footnotes is special to me. It is my last one as chancellor of IU South Bend. Footnotes started upon my arrival nearly five years ago in reference to my PhD in Literature and my colorful socks. I have used this newsletter to keep the campus and community informed. In this issue you will read more about my departure but also about the good things that our students, faculty, and staff are doing. As always, these stories make me proud.

For the first time in our history, IU South Bend has a Goldwater Scholar. Martin Endowed Chair of Piano Named
Tanya Gabrielian has been named the new Martin Endowed Professor of Piano in the Ernestine M. Raclin School of the Arts. She has a fascinating background. Admitted to Harvard at age sixteen to study biomedical engineering, she instead pursued a career in music completing her Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees at the Royal Academy of Music in London. She then attended the Juilliard School of Music. At age twenty, she won the Scottish International Piano Competition and has since performed on four continents. She will receive her doctorate from the Graduate Center of the City University of New York in May and will begin her responsibilities at IU South Bend on August 1.

Raise Me
IU South Bend has joined with RaiseMe to offer students in grades 9-12 the opportunity to earn micro-scholarships as they progress through high school. The micro-scholarships are tied to specific achievements toward college such as good grades, test scores, extracurricular activities, community service, and campus visits. The program is designed to help high school students make college more affordable.

Ken Perrin Remembered
Former Chancellor of IU South Bend Ken Perrin has died at the age of 80. Perrin served as chancellor at IU South Bend from 1997 to 2002. Before coming to South Bend he was president of West Chester University, Pennsylvania, president of the Council on Postsecondary Education in Washington, DC, and President of the University of Hawaii. Although I never had the opportunity to meet him I appreciate his leadership and accomplishments at IU South Bend.
