Bike-friendly City Draws Younger People

South Bend Tribune A5

LOCAL

Sunday, May 20, 2012

BY HOWARD DUKE

Locally

Bike enthusiasts flock to South Bend for its bike-friendly atmosphere.

The city has made significant investments in bike infrastructure, including trails and bike-sharing programs. The local community has embraced cycling as a way to reduce traffic congestion and improve air quality.

South Bend has also been recognized for its commitment to environmental sustainability, with a goal of reducing greenhouse gas emissions by 2030.

According to the South Bend Bicycle Plan, the city aims to increase the number of bike riders by 50% by 2025. The plan includes initiatives such as improving bike lanes and increasing access to bike-sharing options.

Local businesses have also benefited from the city's bike-friendly initiatives, with an increase in foot traffic and business opportunities.

South Bend continues to be a leader in bike-friendly city planning, with ongoing efforts to make the city even more bike-friendly for residents and visitors alike.